++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Rain then showers in east. Drier and brighter in west.

Today:
Cloudy and wet during the morning in the east, with spells of heavy rain making only gradual progress eastwards. Brighter throughout in the west, with the best chance of warm sunny spells, as further showers develop later in eastern parts. Maximum temperature 24 deg C (75 deg F).

Tonight:
Remaining showers slowly dying out to leave a dry second half of the night, with developing clear spells perhaps allowing a few fog patches to form inland. Minimum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Monday:
A rather cloudy start for many, but tending to brighten up through the day, with decent warm sunny spells developing more widely during the afternoon. Becoming breezy near eastern coasts. Maximum temperature 25 deg C (77 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
On the cool side with some cloudy starts, but overall drier and much more settled through this period, with sunny spells on Tuesday and Wednesday, ahead of a cloudier Thursday.
